

Impact globally and nationally – Theory of change

Our actions

Conduct research and gather evidence on the issues disabled people face

We conduct research and generate evidence to create persuasive insight

Share our evidence with key influencers, driving change through persuasive insight and developing supportive relationships

We influence decision-makers to drive change

Build the capacity and capability of, and provide platforms for, people with disabilities and DPOs

We advocate for disability rights with, and build the capacity of, individuals and Disabled People's Organisations (DPOs)

Organise campaigns and mobilise support

Work in and build partnerships and coalitions

Our interim outcomes

Increased support for Leonard Cheshire campaigns and policy messages amongst key influencers including:
• Campaigners
• Media
• Elected officials

Disabled campaigners and DPOs have enhanced expertise and ability to advocate for their rights, and have increased profile

Decision-makers (eg from national government and international development organisations) have increased awareness and understanding of the key issues people with disabilities face

More coalitions and partners integrate our key messages into their work, and promote shared objectives and campaign calls

Our longer-term outcomes

Disability issues are a key focus of international development organisations (eg World Bank)

International development organisations prioritise disability issues in their programmes and policies

Disability issues are a key focus of governments and other relevant organisations

More key decision-makers in governments take positive actions which address the issues raised

More laws and policies responsive to the rights and needs of disabled people are passed*

More people with disabilities and DPOs are engaged in monitoring and accountability processes to ensure laws and policies are fully implemented

Maintain focus and reinforce the need for change through evidence, campaigning, proposing solutions and providing technical advice, and support disabled people to participate in political space

Our aims

Resources are allocated to ensure policies are enacted in practice

Laws enable individuals to live, learn and work as they choose

The UN Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities (UNCRPD) is fully implemented

A fair and inclusive world, where everyone can live as they choose

* Leads to Theory of change for organisations and the public: 'Law / policy changes influence organisations'

Line of accountability
